Finding a community-based or social justice project that is effective and the right fit for you can take time.

Use this brainstorm to help you get started on finding projects that might be a good fit for you.

And remember, you don't need to start with your own project! Start getting involved now to see what fits!

You can use this brainstorm to identify issues you are passionate about and then look for organizations already doing work you can join!

Or use this to discover who can suggest where you can make a difference (Resources) or figure out how you can help best (Skills).
